-  Intel Corp. In September 2015, a class-action lawsuit was settled without admission of wrongdoing by Apple, Google, Intel and Adobe paying a total of $415 million to current and former employees. The lawsuit alleged that the four companies conspired in a secret anti-poaching "gentlemen's agreement" whereby the four companies agreed to not steal each others' staff.
-  Johnson & Johnson In December 2015, a jury awarded $70 million in punitive damages against Johnson & Johnson's subsidiary Ethicon Endo-Surgery, LLC for injuries to a patient allegedly caused by a defective Ethicon PPH 03 hemorrhoid stapler. Ethicon did recall 144,693 PPH 03 units sold between 2011 and 2012; however, the stapler used in the surgery was discarded and it is unknown if it was, in fact, one of these units and there remain appealable issues of culpability with respect to the attending surgeon. The case is currently being appealed.

- AT&T, Inc. In June 2015 the FCC announced plans to fine AT&T Mobility $100 million for misleading customers about its "unlimited" mobile data plans, imposing the agency's largest proposed fine ever in alleging that the carrier "severely" slowed down the data speeds for customers with such plans. In December 2015, AT&T Mobility, LLC, agreed to settle allegations that it charged mobile customers without their permission for third-party services.
- Computer Sciences Corp. In June 2015, CSC reached an agreement in principle with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) to settle a long-standing civil investigation involving certain accounting matters from fiscal 2009-2012. The SEC additionally charged former finance executives with manipulating financial results and concealing significant problems in previous years about the company's largest and most high-profile contract. The SEC additionally charged former finance executives involved with CSC's international businesses for ignoring basic accounting standards to increase reported profits. The charges all related to accounting periods prior to the appointment of the current leadership. The new leadership has created a new corporate culture and has been aggressive in their efforts related to transparency and disclosure.
- E.I. DuPont De Nemours & Co. E.I. DuPont De Nemours & Co would have been ranked No. 19. In July 2015, a judge ruled against DuPont and Chemours Co. in an Ohio exposure case less than a week after the companies separated. The previous deaths of four workers had prompted a deeper look at DuPont Safety Practices in various states. OSHA conducted a second inspection after the Texas plant incident and found serious, willful and repeat violations. DuPont was placed in Severe Violator Enforcement Program.
- Walt Disney Co. In February 2015 the Walt Disney Company submitted a settlement to end a six-year-old lawsuit from an environmental watchdog over water pollutant discharges at its motion picture studio lot in Burbank, Calif.
- Adobe Systems Inc. In September 2015, a class-action lawsuit was settled with Apple, Google, Intel and Adobe paying a total of $415 million to current and former employees. The lawsuit alleged that the four companies conspired in a secret anti-poaching "gentlemen's agreement" whereby the four companies agreed to not steal each others' staff.
- CVS Health Corp. In September 2015 CVS Health Corp reached a $48 million settlement of a lawsuit accusing the U.S. drugstore operator of fraudulently concealing a significant loss of revenue in its pharmacy benefits manager business, culminating in a plunge in its stock price. CVS Health reached an agreement to settle the securities class action lawsuit related to purchases of CVS Health Corporation stock in 2008 and 2009 as well as public disclosures made by the Company at that time concerning the PBM business. The settlement was funded by insurance proceeds.
- Altria Group Inc. Altria is one of the three largest U.S. tobacco companies that agreed to pay $100 million to settle 400 Florida lawsuits in February 2015. The agreement marked the first significant move by the tobacco industry to pay money directly to smokers and their families as part of a settlement.
- Mosaic Company In September 2015, Mosaic reached settlements with federal and state environmental agencies in Florida and Louisiana relating to how Mosaic manages certain waste materials at its fertilizer production facilities. When the settlements become effective, Mosaic will modify certain practices and undertake new projects expected to result in capital expenditures likely to exceed $200 million, place $630 million into trusts as financial assurance to support the closure and long-term care of its phosphogypsum stack systems, pay an $8 million penalty and conduct or fund two environmental projects valued at $2.2 million.

■ Eli Lilly & Co. In August 2015, Eli Lilly & Co appeared at trial over allegations it failed to warn users of antidepressant Cymbalta that they could suffer severe withdrawal symptoms. However, the company was then cleared of this by the jury.

■ ConocoPhillips ConocoPhillips would have been ranked No. 59. In May 2015 ConocoPhillips and Phillips 66 were required to pay $11.5 million to settle a lawsuit in California alleging the duo of violating anti-pollution laws at hundreds of their gas stations since 2006. Per the lawsuit, authorities charged that the gas stations did not properly maintain underground gasoline-storage tanks which put nearby water supplies at risk. In July 2015 a Chinese court agreed to hear a lawsuit filed by a private public-interest group against ConocoPhillips China and China National Offshore Oil Corp., over oil spills in the country's waters four years prior. They have already paid about $270 million to the State Oceanic Administration. The companies also agreed with China's Ministry of Agriculture to pay $160 million to settle spill-related claims. On September 8, 2015, a former project lead filed a lawsuit in Texas seeking overtime pay. The suit said leads were paid a day rate with no additional overtime premium and that Conoco unlawfully classified these workers as independent contractors, and failed to pay them overtime in violation of the Fair Labor Standards Act. The lawsuit seeks overtime premiums, plus double damages.
